Smartphone flattens internet curve in India

Even as usage rises, reach and growth have stalled

VANITA KOHLI-KHANDEKAR
Pune, 3 January

The growth rate of the internet in India has almost flattened. From double-digit growth rates through 2016 to 2020, it slumped to about 4 per cent in 2021 going by the Telecom Regulatory Authority of India (Trai) data. In the quarter ending June 2022, the growth of internet subscribers was less than one per cent of all of 2021. It was less than a per cent even if you compared it to the same quarter from the previous year. The fallout — the number of people using broadband has hovered at the same level for two years now. The numbers using it for social media, video or entertainment has stalled at about 485 million, according to Comscore data (see charts).

The reason is not hard to find — smartphones. As their prices hit the roof, smartphone adoption at the middle and lower end has stalled and therefore the internet's growth has stalled. This, even as usage or time spent continues to rise in double digits (see charts).

Smarting from a price rise

"Wireless (telephony) numbers continue to drop," says Anuj Gandhi, founder, Plug and Play Entertainment, and a former television executive. "From the last two years, the organic growth rate of smartphones has stalled. There has been degrowth, we are back to 2019 levels," says Navkendar Singh, associate vice president, devices research, IDC. Its data shows that the Indian smartphone market declined 10 per cent year-on-year in the third quarter of 2022 (July-September). This was the lowest third-quarter figure since 2019. "The internet economy is smartphone-based and overall the smartphone base has not increased," points out Singh.

India has more than 837 million internet users — 800 million of which use broadband. Out of these, about 600-630 million or just under 80 per cent use smartphones. For millions of Indians, a smartphone is the first port of entry into the internet. These are phones capable of processing bandwidth that allows you to watch a movie, listen to music or have a meeting online. These are the data guzzlers that have made Google, Meta (Facebook), WhatsApp, Instagram, Netflix or MX Player what they are today — dominant media players. As the price of these phones went down the internet has grown in India, making it one of the most exciting telecom and therefore media markets. The pandemic, however, brought a halt to that. As the supply of chips used in smartphone manufacturing got choked, prices went through the roof. Earlier, the sweet spot for people at the middle and lower end to upgrade from an ordinary phone to a smartphone was ₹8,000. There is now no smartphone available in that range, says Singh. The average selling price is ₹16,000-20,000. "Affordability has gone," says one telecom executive. This has meant that people, who use ordinary phones and want to upgrade to one that could help them access all the goodies on the internet, just didn't move up the value chain. "New (chip) fabrication capacity will be operational in the next 3-5 years. The first major addition to capacity will come in the second half of 2023," says the telecom executive. That will ease the demand-supply situation, making chips accessible for entry-level smartphones. Since people who already own smartphones are in any case watching more films, shows or doing meetings etc, time spent continues to rise. In the medium-term then, the impact on media consumption, advertising spends or subscription growth is not yet discernible. But if growth at the entry level doesn't pick up this year, there is only so much existing broadband users can consume.

Builders go for outright land buys amid better residential demand

RAGHAVENDRA KAMATH
Mumbai, 3 January

Property developers are favouring outright purchase of land parcels for residential developments, according to real estate consultants and developers. While before the pandemic developers mostly preferred joint ventures (JVs) to de-risk and conserve cash, now they opted to buy land as residential sales improved and consolidation had gained ground in real estate, experts said. According to Mayank Saksena, chief executive, land services, at Anarock Property Consultants, the ratio of outright purchases of land to JVs had changed to 50:50 from 80:20 before the pandemic. Prior to Covid-19, 80 per cent of land bought was through JVs.

"Today, good developers don't want interference from landowners. They are confident that their product is good and they can sell the project well," Saksena said. He added that the residential market was faring better than the commercial market, which was a driving factor for the outright purchasing of land. "All that the top developers want is land parcels, which are free from litigation, and good landowners," he said. According to Anarock, the top eight cities saw at least 68 separate land deals accounting for 1,656 acres in the first nine months of 2022. In the corresponding period in 2021, only 20 land deals for 925 acres were closed across these cities.

Of the 68 land deals in the nine months of 2022, nearly 40 comprising over 590 acres were proposed for residential development. About 26 deals were meant for commercial development. Godrej Properties has already changed its strategy from an asset-light model to outright purchase in the last couple of years.

The company recently bought land parcels in Mumbai, Pune, National Capital Region (NCR) and other cities. "Our land acquisition strategy is based on high-impact deals, and with plenty of opportunities across key markets we are open to all models of purchase based on the merit of the available land parcels. Our focus remains on group housing in key micro markets within Mumbai, NCR, Bengaluru and Pune as we see a lot of growth potential in these markets," said Gaurav Pandey, MD and CEO designate, Godrej Properties. Godrej is selectively looking at tier-II markets for plotted development. It recently entered Nagpur and Sonapat and also acquired a land parcel for a residential project in Manor-Palghar, Maharashtra, for plotted development. In FY23, it has so far added eight projects that take the cumulative expected booking value from them to approximately ₹16,500 crore as against the full-year guidance of adding projects with a booking value potential of ₹15,000 crore, Pandey said.

Nishant Kabra, senior director, India capital markets, JLL, attributed the trend to three reasons. First, the post-Covid market has seen institutionalised developers corner a larger share of the residential sales pie across all major cities. Second, increased residential sales have brought down inventory overhangs in most pockets. And third, after a decade or so there is almost a 20 to 25 per cent pricing difference between ready and under-construction inventory. Again, as far as under-construction sales go, consumers tend to reward organised developers with a proven track record of delivery, Kabra said. "Given these trends, I expect acquisition activity to continue strongly and developers would continue to allocate capital for the acquisition of land," he said.

SC: Cinemas, multiplexes can prohibit outside food

VIVEAT SUSAN PINTO
Mumbai, 3 January

The Supreme Court said on Tuesday theatre owners had the right to prohibit outside food and beverages on their premises, giving relief to multiplexes. A Bench headed by Chief Justice of India D Y Chandrachud said that movie halls were the private property of owners, so they had the right to decide what could be carried in them. It set aside a Jammu and Kashmir (J&K) High Court order asking multiplexes and theatres not to prevent visitors from carrying their own food and beverages. The Supreme Court, however, said that cinemas should allow parents to bring food for infants and children and provide free drinking water to all visitors. "A cinema hall owner has the right to regulate the entry of food and beverage. Whether to consume what is available is entirely upon the choice of the movie goer. Viewers visit movie halls for entertainment," it said. "If a viewer enters a movie hall, he or she has to adhere to the rules of the cinema hall owner and it is evidently a matter of commercial decision of the theatre owner," said the court. The Supreme Court pronounced its verdict on pleas filed by theatre owners in Jammu and Kashmir and the Multiplex Association of India challenging the High Court order.
